Fitzmaurice's keynote presentation, "It's Not Only About SharePoint Anymore" on November 12 at 9 a.m., will highlight that modern business solutions require the use of content, services, and data from a wide range of sources for use by people both inside and outside the organization. Successful organizations will utilize a range of solutions, many of which will not require expensive software development resources to implement, such as Nintex's Workflow Automation platform. Fitzmaurice will discuss how to successfully deal with this disruption and evolving technologies and also will participate in two other sessions, including "Real-World Lessons for Provider-Hosted Office 365 Apps Built on Azure" on November 10 at 3:15 p.m. and "Form-Based Solutions: You're (Possibly) Doing it Wrong" on November 12 at 2 p.m.

Nintex Technical Evangelists Patrick Hosch and Simon Wright will lead a session on November 12 at 10:15 a.m. entitled "A Day in the Life of a Workflow Power User." Based on a real life business scenario, attendees will learn how to use Nintex's workflow platform to leverage Office 365 and extend workflows efficiently and easily to mobile users and other cloud systems for digital signatures, CRM, and file storage.

Earlier this year, Nintex received one of Microsoft's top partner honors, the 2015 Microsoft Office and SharePoint Application Development Partner of the Year award, for demonstrating excellence in the innovation and implementation of customer solutions based on Microsoft Office and SharePoint technologies.
