

Nintex Named for Third Year in a Row as one of Washington's 100 Best Companies to Work For, According to Seattle Business Magazine

BELLEVUE, Wash., June 23, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Nintex, the recognized global leader in workflow and content automation (WCA), announced today that it has been named one of the top 10 companies, in the large company category, within Seattle Business Magazine's Annual Washington 100 Best Companies to Work For program.

Nintex is a fast-growing, cloud technology company that helps more than 7,000 companies across industries -- like financial services, healthcare, government, IT services, and more -- easily automate simple to sophisticated processes, especially content-centric ones, to drive faster and better business results.

Seattle Business Magazine's 100 Best Companies to Work For winners were chosen based on extensive confidential surveys completed by more than 31,000 employees across the state of Washington. Nintex was selected for setting the standard for leadership, benefits, work environment, training programs and more. The company was first recognized in 2015 by the magazine in the medium size company category, and again in 2016 in the large size company category. This recognition marks Nintex's second appearance in the top 10 list for large companies.

"The annual recognition by Seattle Business Magazine reinforces Nintex as a top technology company to work for in Washington state," said Nintex CEO John Burton. "While the Nintex business continues to grow worldwide at a rapid rate, our leaders have not lost our focus on fostering a culture of collaboration. It's our 450-plus employees who make Nintex great. It's these talented individuals who are driving innovation in intelligent process automation for tens of thousands of people using Nintex technology every day to improve how work gets done."

Earlier this year Nintex was named the Best Workflow Tool 2017 by Redmond Channel Partner and by CRN as one of its 2017 100 Coolest Cloud Vendors. Additionally, the Nintex office in London was recognized on the 2017 UK's Best Workplaces™ List.
