

Nintex Promotes Joshua Waldo to Chief Customer Officer

BELLEVUE, Wash., July 10, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Nintex, the recognized global leader in workflow and content automation (WCA), announced today the company has promoted Joshua Waldo to Chief Customer Officer (CCO), a newly created executive position. As CCO, Waldo will be responsible for delivering superior customer and partner experiences worldwide.

"During his three years at Nintex, Josh has developed a best-in-class partner program and channels organization and a product marketing team that is driving our market success and technology advances," says Nintex CEO John Burton. "Josh's experience and skills enabling the ongoing success of our 7,400-plus customers and partners worldwide provide an excellent background to assume this new role and to bring Nintex to the next level of providing a superior customer journey and heightened success."

In his new CCO role, Nintex's global customer support organization will report into Waldo and he will continue to manage and enable Nintex's thriving partner ecosystem, comprised of more than 1,700 partners. He and his team will also continue to establish strategic alliances that help end users utilize process automation and process intelligence to streamline how work gets done, connect systems through the cloud, and achieve more profitable operations.

Waldo joined Nintex in 2014 and most recently served as Nintex Vice President of Channels and Product Marketing, where he has been recognized for two years in a row by CRN magazine as a top Channel Chief for his results.

Prior to Nintex, Waldo spent nine years at Microsoft most recently serving as senior director of cloud partner strategy within the Microsoft Worldwide Partner Group. He also has held key positions at Oracle and Siebel Systems.
